July in the Garden

In the Entrance Plaza outside of the Shop in the Garden sits a small, sparsely branched deciduous tree with showy, summer-borne, lavender-pink flowers. The tree is known as a chitalpa and there is another, smaller specimen near the Roseline Sturdy Amphitheatre, but it is otherwise a rare tree around Vancouver. Read more on our blog.

Shop & Garden Centre Update: Ready for Summer!

What better way to top off your summer visit to the UBC Botanical Garden than by sitting outside, sipping a refreshing drink or enjoying a delicious ice cream? Come and enjoy a wide selection of plants, gardening tools, books, clothing, jewellery and more at the Shop in the Garden & Garden Centre.

Our buyers have stocked up on watering paraphernalia, tools and fertilizer for your summer gardening needs. We have great accessories for your summertime garden parties and children's toys for those lazy days at the beach. Choose from a wide selection of Canadian-made products and native designs for your out-of-town visitors. Learn more.

Staff Picks: My Favourite Garden Spot

My favourite garden location is a small, quiet corner in the Asian Garden along Decaisne Trail. I always try to include a wander along this pathway during my breaks. There is something to see no matter the season. There are flowering trees and shrubs including camellias and magnolias in the spring and the fabulous Decaenea insignis – the Dead Man's fingers – later in the year. Personally, I relish the mosses in the rain, the twisty branches of fallen trees and the birds and animals that visit. Partway along there is a fallen tree that is slowly decomposing; it provides a habitat for new growth including a little rhododendron growing on the log!

Sustainable Communities Field School

Calling all business teams! Get your employees outside -- at our Sustainable Communities Field School. By participating in team-building activities throughout the day, your employees will be refreshed through time in nature; reset by having fun with their colleagues; and restored by learning about local sustainability. View our website for more details.
